The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 47-77 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 48, 50-77 and 79 of copending Application No. 10/594,711 in view of Epp et al. (US 6,063,515).

Claim 48 of the '711 application recites the same hydrogen supply system that is recited in present claim 47, as part of a submarine boat that also includes a fuel cell to which the hydrogen is supplied, and a propelling device powered by electricity from the fuel cell. Claims 50-77 and 79 of the '711 application recite the same respective details as present claims 48-75 and 77. The present claims differ by reciting the submarine boat, including the fuel cell and propelling device. Epp et al. disclose a fuel cell to be used on a submarine, to provide power for propulsion and other loads (column 1, line 67 through column 2, line 2), and which receives hydrogen made from a fuel processing system (column 4, line 60 through column 4, line 14).

Art Unit: 1795

Because the hydrogen supply system of the '711 application would be able to perform the same function as the fuel processing system of Epps et al., it would be obvious to use the hydrogen supply system of the '711 application in the submarine of Epps et al., to supply hydrogen to the fuel cell therein. Regarding claim 76, the avoidance of a cooling device would be an obvious expedient to the ordinary artisan in view of the hydrogen supply system being operable at 100 °C or less (present claim 63, claim 65 of the '711 application), which is below the operating temperatures of most fuel cells.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Clausi et al. (US 3,795,544), Hespel (US 3,902,919) and Schmitman (US 6,610,193) each disclose submarines that include onboard fuel cells.

The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.
